Hello everybody. My name is Julia. I'm glad to see you all here. In continuation of the speech of my colleague Catherine about the updated bomb shelters, I want to name a few other important and latest updates for the bunkers that we developed.

Another update that will happen outside the bunker is disguise. We have developed a special material to cover the hopper, which will merge with the colors of the environment, which will completely hide it from prying eyes. This material is developed from special nanoparticles that work on the principle of a chameleon. Why is this needed? In case of unforeseen attacks by the enemy or in case of uninvited guests. Our new bunker cannot be detected both from the air and from the ground.

Several updates that will occur inside the bunker are special electronic screens built into the walls of the bunker, which will help to keep in touch around the world with other similar bunkers, as well as broadcast the situation outside the bunker for several hundred kilometers. This will help you find out if it's safe outside, and when it will become possible to go outside. Communication with other bunkers will help you not to go crazy with loneliness, if suddenly you are left alone in the bunker, either ask for help or share food. You may ask how other people from the bunker can help you if it is dangerous outside and you cannot leave?

This is our next update to the silos - connecting tunnels underground to all of our silos in the world. The tunnels will be equipped with light, special escalators that will quickly take you from one place to another. So you can share food with other people in the bunkers, or offer your help.

That's all we wanted to tell you about the bomb shelter updates from PR. Thanks for attention. Further, our colleagues will continue our speech, a word to them.
