

WINTHROP
UNIVERSITY

Department of Sociology, Criminology and Anthropology

March 9, 2022,

Dear Dr. Alexander B. Bezborodov,

I am writing in order to officially thank the Administration of the Russian State University for the Humanities (RSUH) for recently allowing me the privilege of teaching a course titled "Anthropological Theory." This came about as the result of being invited to teach such a class by the Center of Social Anthropology and most of the students were from the Center. This class, taken by undergraduate and graduate students, was held from February 8th to March 3rd of 2022 by way of Zoom meetings.

I must say that I thoroughly enjoyed interacting with RSUH students...Not only are they very intelligent but they are quite insightful as well. I say this because they readily grasped the important ethical ramifications associated with various theoretical approaches and methodologies. Moreover, on more than one occasion, students presented insights on topics from perspectives that, until that moment, I had never considered. It goes without saying that I consider myself a better scholar for having spent such quality time with RSUH students.

In closing, I just wanted to extend a heartfelt thanks to you because, after interacting with RSUH students, I can unequivocally say that the future of Anthropology in Russia looks bright.

Sincerely,
Richard J. Chacon
Professor of Anthropology
Winthrop University, South Carolina
USA
Email: chaconr@winthrop.edu cc: Dr. Olga Artemova: artemova.olga@list.ru; Dr. Vera Zobotkina: zobotkina@rggu.ru; Dr.
Dmitri Bondarenko: dmitrimb@mail.ru